

Perry's inner Aussie comes out while on tour 'Down Under' and she even tries Vegemite

November 22, 2014 12:30AM

Pop princess ... Katy Perry performs at Allphones Arena in Sydney . Picture: Jake Nowakowski
Source: News Corp Australia

KATY Perry reinvents the pop concert as an eight act Broadway musical for her ambitious Prismatic world tour which opened its Sydney run at Allphones Arena last night.

The fast-paced, slickly choreographed and designed to dazzle show is guaranteed to reboot your mood.

Perry doesn't much around, getting straight into the show with her smash hit Roar, wearing an illuminated top and skirt which flashed fluoro as she belted out the first act which also featured Part Of Me and Wide Awake.

Prismatic ... A fluoro-flashing costume is just one of the bells and whistles of the Prismatic show. (Photo by Mark Metcalfe/Getty Images) Source: Getty Images

Her physical fitness campaign is clearly working out with Perry managing to skip rope in one song, jog on a catwalk treadmill in another and do enviable multiple thigh squats at regular junctions.

The lighting design is jaw dropping, from lasers which fracture into suspended twinkling spots of colour to glowing guitars and the final explosion of prisms seen through 3D glasses during Firework.

Other Prismatic acts included the Egyptian theme which anchored Dark Horse and a cat wonderland of scratching posts and climbing towers.

Musical delight ... Katy Perry performing her Prismatic Australian tour at Allphones Arena in Sydney. Picture: Adam Taylor Source: News Corp Australia

When she was singing, or performing some of the quickest costume changes on record, Perry loved a chat with her adoring KatyCats.

She has done her homework for her epic six week tour of Australia, littering her banter with a well accented “Listen to moi” in homage to Kath and Kim, adopting “heaps” as her new favourite expression and giving Vegemite a go.

One lucky fan out of the 16,000 at the gig scored a pizza during her acoustic set declaring she is now gluten free.

Powerhouse ... Katy Perry live of stage. Picture: Mark Metcalfe/Getty Images Source: Getty Images

For all the state of the art production, Perry delivered old school family entertainment with plenty of singalong moments, hands shaken and no F bombs.

Even the Dads looked like they had a good time.

Perry performs again tonight and will also appear as a special guest at the ARIA Awards in Wednesday.

<http://www.news.com.au/entertainment/music/perrys-inner-aussie-comes-out-while-on-tour-down-under-and-she-even-tries-vegemite/story-e6frfn09-1227131346510>